

ARTICLE APPEARED
ON PAGE 25WASHINGTON POST
28 November 1986

OBITUARIES

Claud Corrigan, Ex-CIA Editor, Head of Golf Association, Dies

Claud H. Corrigan, 65, a retired editor with the Office of Central References of the Central Intelligence Agency and president of the Washington Metropolitan Golf Association, died Nov. 25 at Fairfax Hospital after a heart attack.

Mr. Corrigan, who lived in Vienna, was born in Michigan. He grew up in Coral Gables, Fla., and graduated from the University of Miami.

During World War II, he served in the Navy in Europe. He remained in the Navy Reserve, retiring in 1974 as a captain. He joined the CIA in 1947 and retired in 1975.

Mr. Corrigan was a past president of the Westwood Country Club in Vienna, where he edited the club newsletter. He wrote a weekly golf column for the Northern Virginia Sun newspaper and was the editor of the monthly newsletter of the Mid-Atlantic Association of Golf Course Superintendents.

He was a member of the Golf Writers Association of America, the Golf Collectors' Society and the Golf Club Repairmen's Association.

His marriage to Dorothy Corrigan ended in divorce.

Survivors include his wife, Peggy, of Vienna; three sons from his first marriage, James, of Baltimore, Daniel, of Anderson, S.C., and Philip, of Reston; three stepdaughters, Lynne Francis of Sloatsburg, N.Y., Marianne Francis of Fort Worth, and Carol Francis of Fairfax; a brother, George of Coral Gables, and five grandchildren.

Europe. He graduated from George Washington University, where he also earned a master's degree and a doctorate in psychology.

He became a civilian employe of the Army Department in the early 1950s and retired as a research psychologist in 1971.

Later, Mr. Kaplan, a member of Southeast Neighbors, worked for the Southeast Neighborhood House. Mayor Marion Barry and the D.C. Council proclaimed Nov. 16, 1984, "Harry Kaplan Day" in recognition of his outstanding community service.

Survivors include his wife, Ruth, of Washington; five daughters, Marjorie Kaplan and Maryann Lazer, both of Annapolis, Eleanor Adams of Columbia, Md., Laura Murray of Havre de Grace, Md., and Harriet Kaplan of Bismarck, N.D.; a sister, Mary Weiss of Chicago, and five grandchildren.